WWII Research project

WWII was one of the bloodiest conflicts in human history and it began on September 1st 1939 and ended on September 2nd 1945, this was because of Adolf Hitler's invasion of Poland. Adolf Hitler wanted to take Poland and claim it as Germany's land. This resulted in Great Britain and France to declare war on Germany. This war lasted 6 years and over millions of people lost their lives due to this war and it involved more than 30 countries. This war was split into two opposing military alliances. The allies were led by Britain, the United States, the Soviet Union and France. The Axis Powers were led by Nazi Germany, Fascist Italy and Imperial Japan. The main goal for this war was deafening Germany.

Being said, this was one of the deadliest and bloodiest wars in history and it had many deaths. Many of the people who died either died during the war or after the war. The war overall had a big impact and was the main cause for all these deaths. Many civilians lost their lives due to deliberate genocides, massacres, mass bombings, diseases and starvation. These causes of deaths were all linked to the war. The highest death toll in WWII was on D-day, June 6th 1944.

Both the Axis and Allied powers had different goals, to accomplish these goals they would have to defeat one another. The axis power's goal was to expand their land. They mainly wanted control and power over the world and their neighbors' lands. The allies' goal was to create a peaceful post-war world. They wanted to defeat the axis powers to defeat them.

There were a lot of advances in technology that helped both sides, especially the allies in the war. These technologies went from atomic bombs to duct tape. Even the smallest advance of technology was useful in the war and helped in many ways. Advanced technology was the result of war world 2 ending. An atomic bomb was dropped in Hiroshima Japan that resulted in many deaths and still after years of being dropped it killed many people who were affected in it.

Total war has always been compared to world war 1 and ww1 has been described as the total war. This is because of the comparison of the size of the war and how devastating it was. It's usually compared because of that. Also, both wars were global, meaning they all took place around the world. Countries fighting with each other.

The Holocaust was genocide, it happened during WW2. This genocide lasted about 4 to 5 years. It killed many jews and other people who were affected by this genocide. The holocaust was caused by Aldof Hitler, who led the Nazis. This genocide was one of the horrific genocides that has ever happened and it killed millions and many who survived were burtally abused in the camps that they were sent and put to work in. Many survivors were left traumatized and had PTSD and other illnesses that were caused by this.

In conclusion this war was one of the deadliest wars and it had many effects on different people around the whole world. This also shows how many people want all the power to themselves that makes them become a horrible person and do horrific things just so they can have it. It also shows us how life has evolved and changed because of this war and what we did to prevent it from happening, sadly nothing can change what happened and wars will continue happening but we can learn from the past wars to improve the technology and strategies.
